

*Digital Memory
Book Project*

POSTART 1

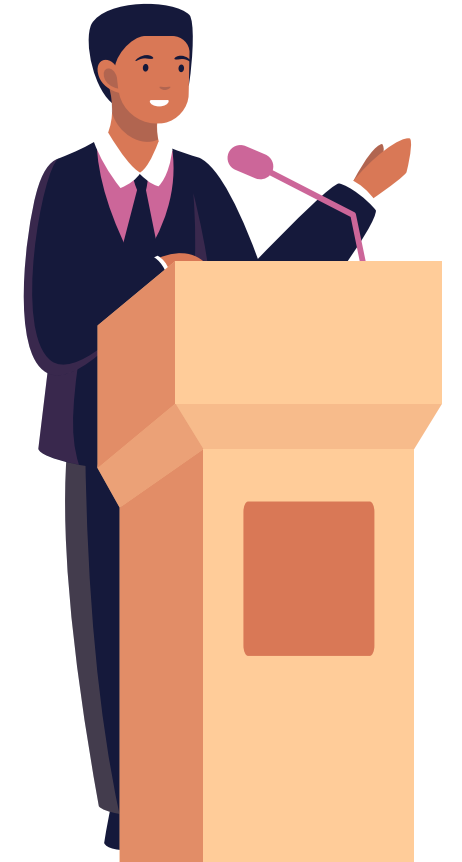

Define the word “memory” using your own words.

Memory is a sequence of colors, feelings, and emotions that create a "picture" of what is happening. A memory can be a combination of all the senses, it can be imaginary and even created on purpose.

Define the word “memory” using the dictionary.

A brain function used to store and retain information.

Why are memories important?

IMPORTANT

Without memories there is no personality - a child remembers how he reacted when he got into an embarrassing situation - if he remembers that he was able to cope then he will use the same way as long as new memories do not make him react differently.

QUEST

THE TEN MOST IMPORTANT EVENTS TO ME

- 1) Nikki, the family dog, died when I was 4 years old
- 2) I learned to ride a bike
- 3) I switched to playing on the computer (instead of PlayStation)
- 4) Amit was born
- 5) Maya and Danielle were born
- 6) I learned scratch
- 7) We moved to Canada
- 8) We moved house
- 9) I learned to ice skate
- 10) I saw snow for the first time (in Canada, on Mount Hermon
this does not count)

1) Nikki, the family dog, died when I was 4 years old

My family's dog died of cancer, when I came back from kindergarten, my parents said that Niki (her full name was Nikita) died and I; I really loved Nikki, I very sad. Nikki had black fur and was a mixed breed dog.

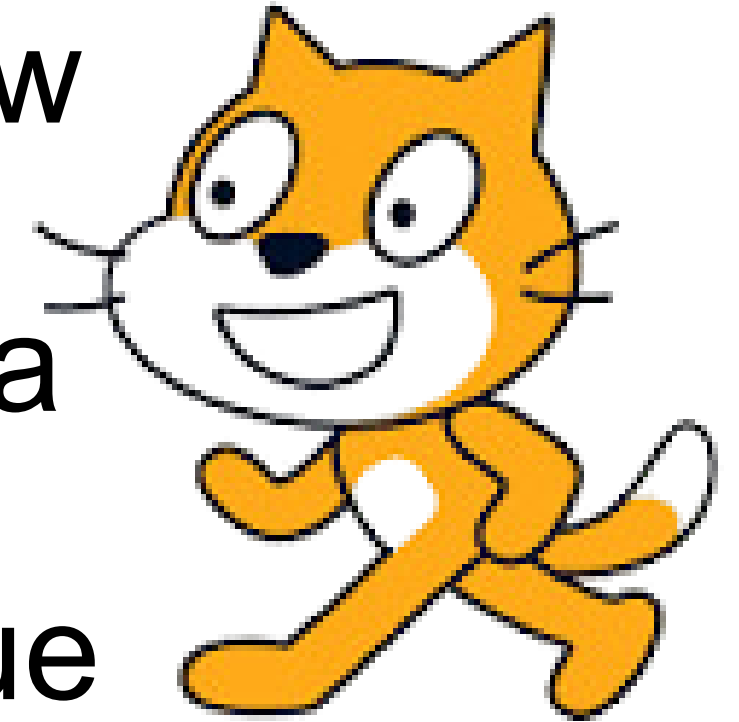

5) Maya and Danielle were born

When Maya and Danielle (the cuties) were born, I was happy that there would be more children. When Maya and Danielle arrived home together with mom and dad, then I was very excited, and now, I ask you a question: have you seen babies from the time they are born until they become kids- age 4-5? If so, you probably know how I felt, if not I'll tell you: all the clothes are the size of a doll and the babies themselves are really cute, did you know that this is so that the mothers don't abandon their helpless children?.

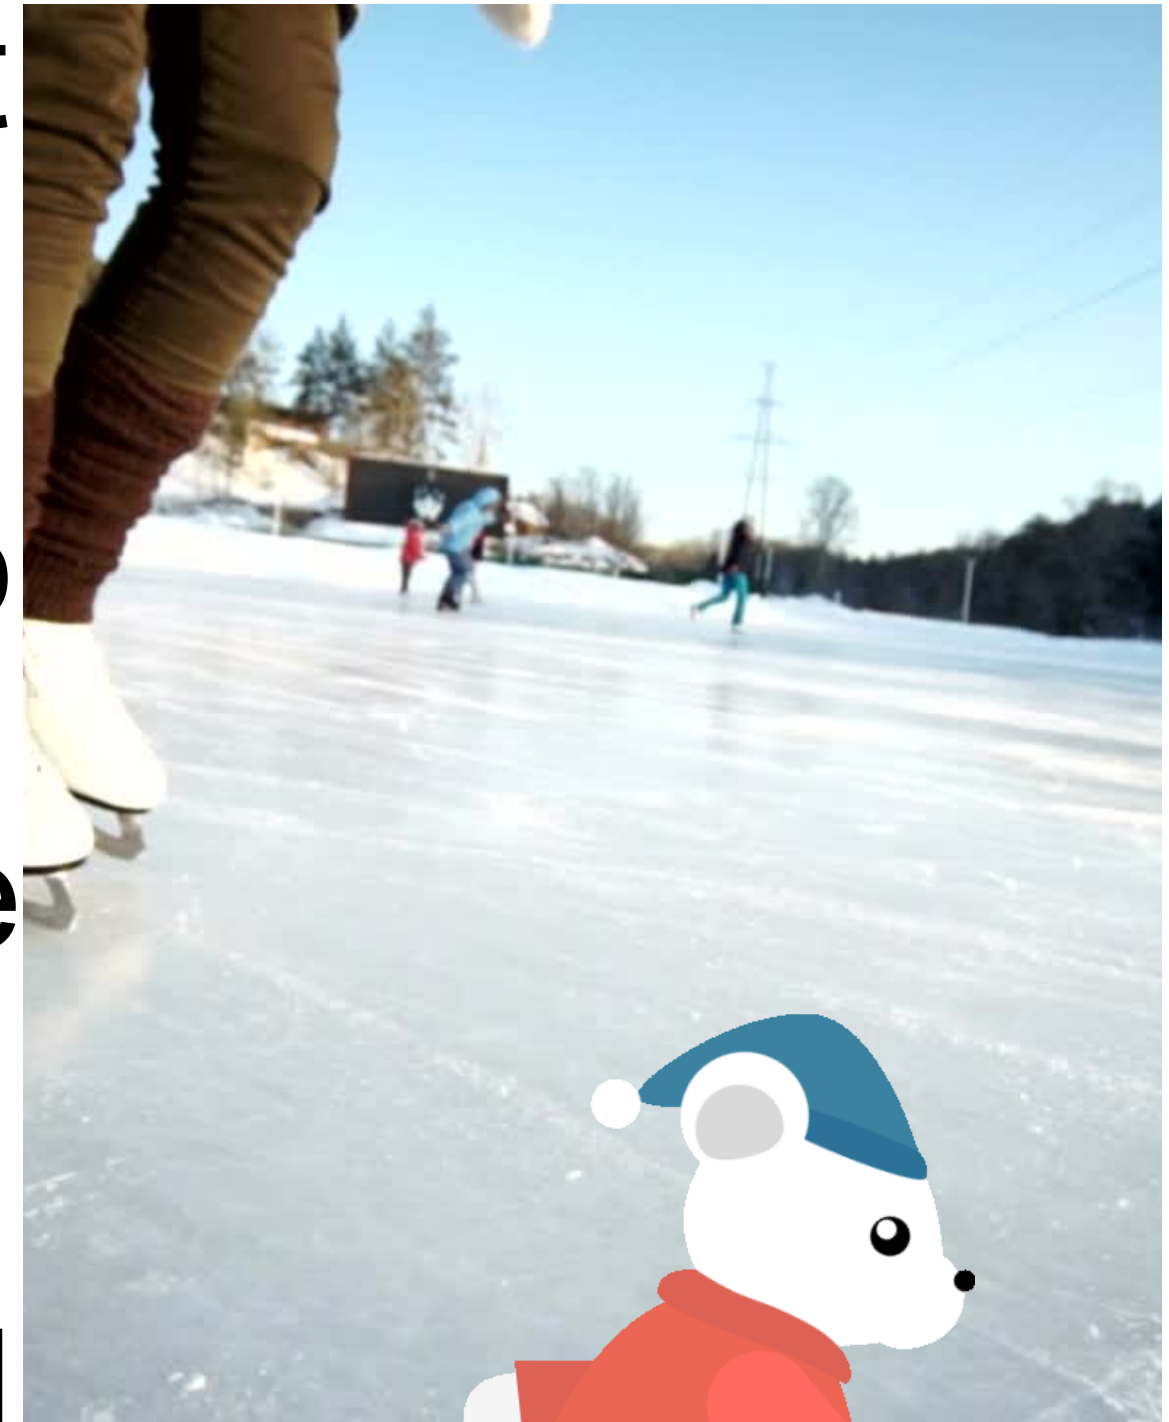

6) I learned scratch

When I just started learning Scratch, I didn't know that the blocks could be in Hebrew, and I didn't understand much, so my father helped me with a strange method - to tell him what I wanted the characters to do: for the black tank to shoot a blue projectile and if it hits the enemy then... this method was successful because in the end I learned Scratch. Nowadays, I already create complex games. The fact that I learned Scratch opened many doors of coding for me such as: Python. I'm just starting Python but luckily I know the basics, maybe in a few years I'll write that I already know Python and that I'm about to switch to another code language.

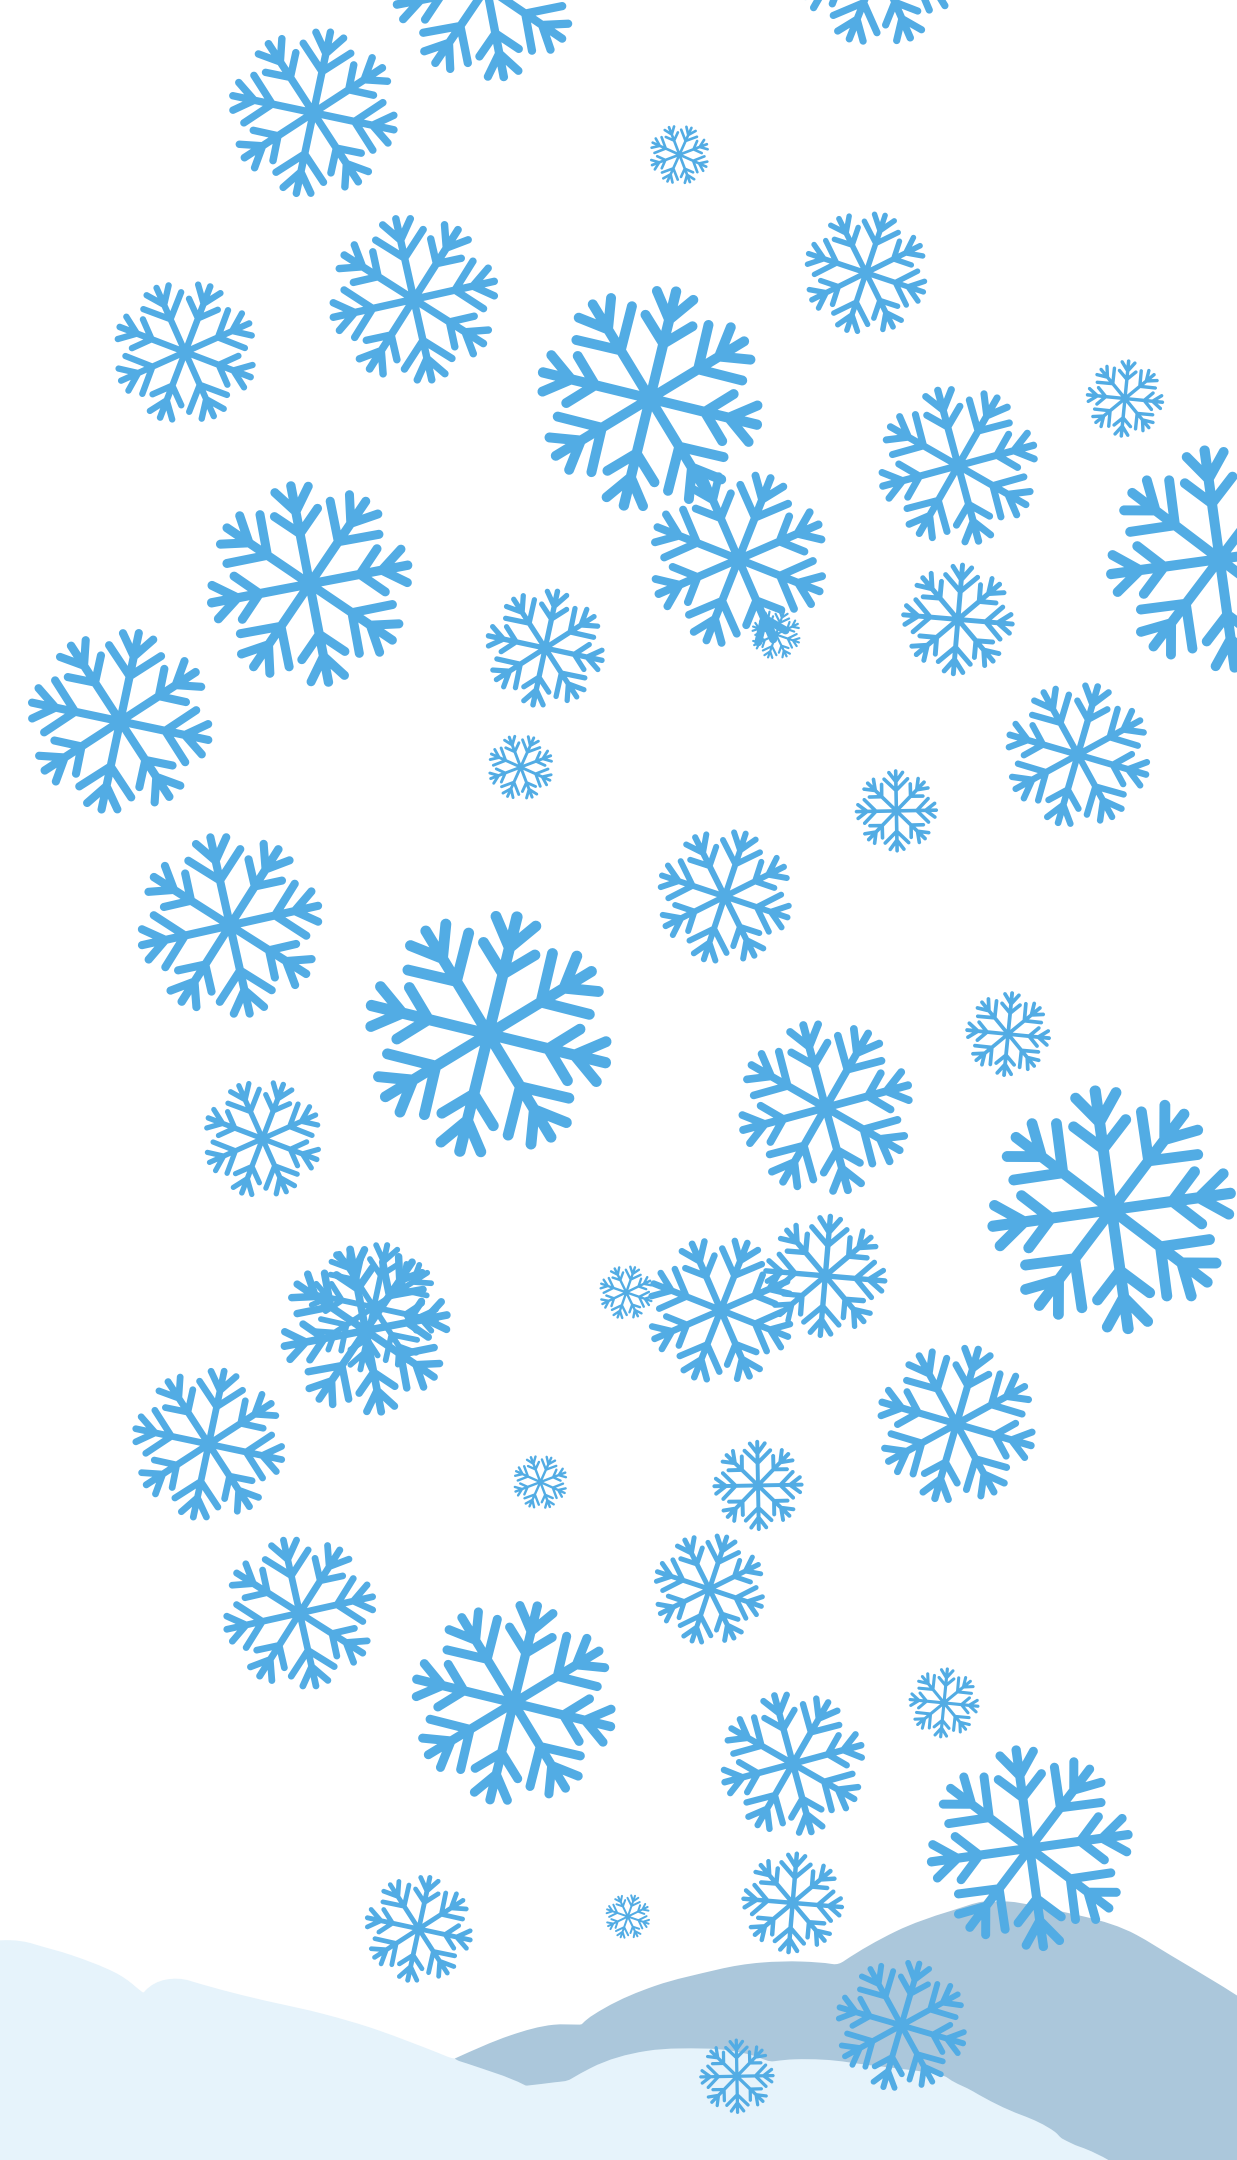

9) I learned to ice skate

I tried to learn ice skating in Israel but I couldn't move and there were a lot of people so I couldn't learn to skate at all. In Canada I was very excited to try again and I even watched a video of how to do it, many complexes were closed but in the end we found an open skating rink and I started to learn: first of all, I clung to the rail and tried to walk in order to move forward, slowly but surely, I started to leave the rail and skate independently.

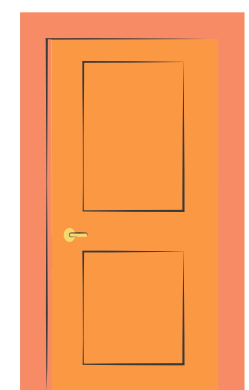

10) I saw snow for the first time
When it snowed for the first time, I was very excited - I had never seen snow; (Technically, I did see it - in Israel, but I never saw it fall and I never saw snow without stepping on it.) You won't believe how excited I was, I felt it (with bare hands) and it was soft and cold, but at that moment I didn't care, I was very excited and tried to make a snowball.

MY HAPPIEST MEMORY

My happiest memory is: I do working on a cube of magnets that he is trying his best to make. He got stuck in my room, Ido's, and Amit's for almost two hours. How do the magnets get to it, you ask? Grandma and Grandpa gave them to him in a box, (which he keeps to this day) and the magnets arrived in the form of a neat cube. After a while, he tried to rebuild them in the form of a cube. In any case, he works and devotes a lot of time to the preparation. I, innocently, put a collapsible ruler bracelet on the floor next to the door as a little joke. I watch Ambush but after a while I get bored and start doing other things. When Ido finally leaves the room, he holds a 6 x 6 x 6 cube in his hands (which is quite small) and... steps on the folding ruler bracelet I put by the door, he jumps in a panic and crushes the beautiful cube he worked on for two hours. And I laugh and laugh and Amit (my little brother) joins in my laughter, and only Ido stands, furious, foaming at the nose and in the fury of his rage chasing me while I burst out laughing. After a while Ido calms down and even laughs about it.
